Connect & Edit

Master Caddy Docking Station

To access and edit your recorded material:

Connect the Master Caddy Docking Station to a Mac® or Windows® editing workstation via USB 2.0 and/or USB 3.0 compatible port/s.

❗ When using USB 2.0, you may need to connect the second USB power cable on the dock to a second USB 2.0 port. This will ensure enough power for the drive when using USB 2.0.

Next, eject the Master Caddy from the Samurai Blade and insert it into the Docking Station. After a short wait your recorded video will become accessible as a standard external disk (Native ExFAT / FAT32 formatted drive/s also supported).

Connect & power-up

Attach Battery:

Attach the supplied battery to the Samurai Blade. Make sure to use the battery slot marked with the number “1” as this is the primary battery. If you purchase an additional battery, it should be connected to the other, secondary slot.

The Samurai Blade utilises only one battery at a time. This way a battery can be removed, charged and replaced during operation. Refer to the User Manual for more information.

IMPORTANT Samurai Blade can only power up / turn on from the primary battery position.
[Battery Slot #1]

CAUTION: The Samurai Blade is constructed from aluminium which acts as the unit's heat sink. In high or extreme temperatures / climates, the metal chassis may feel slightly warm / hot to touch. This is completely normal and does not in any way effect the overall functionality of the Samurai Blade.

Touchscreen / User Interface

The Samurai Blade is controlled by a simple user-friendly touchscreen interface. Pictured left are the main controls seen when the Samurai Blade is first powered up and there is a video input connection.

Pay special attention to any items on screen which are marked by a small blue arrow.

Touch these items to access or cycle through the available options.

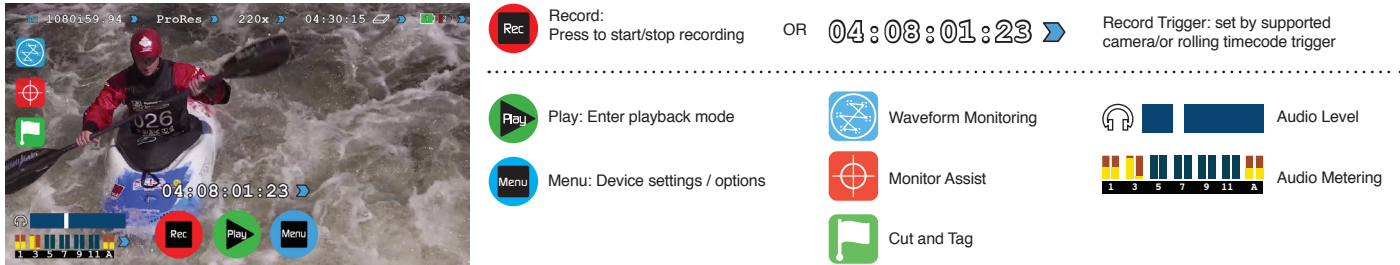

For example, touching the Video Input Format or blue arrow at right will cycle through all available input formats.
